Grief and loss happen to everyone. We've all felt misunderstood during times of pain and loss. We've also stood by, helpless, in the face of other people's grief not knowing what to say or how to be helpful. Part of this is because our culture sees grief as a kind of malady: a terrifying, messy emotion that needs to be cleaned up and put behind us as soon as possible.

Grief isn't something to fix or to overcome, it is something to tend to or support. During our Good Grief series, we will recognize that it's ok not to be ok amid grief. Plus, we will consider tools and responses to grief that are centered in love and grace. We hope to shift the focus from grief as a problem to be solved to an experience to be tended.

We're glad you are here! If you are new, please feel free to ask questions, be yourself, get connected, and let us know if there is anything we can do to make your experience most memorable.
